1. Is this unit a stand-alone unit? – if no , please contact Customer Service.	Yes	No
2. Are you replacing an existing unit? – if yes , a serial number of the existing unit will assist in finding a good replacement.	Yes	no
3. What is your gas type?	NAT	LP
4. Do you require a rear gas connection, as rear gas is not standard ? If no , please see the red circle below for the 1-1/4-inch front gas connection standard on the Master series.	Yes	No
5. Which side would you like to cap and cover (chef's view.) The Garland engineering team recommends that the cap and cover be installed at the factory.	Right	Left

- All Master Series ranges, storage, modular, fryers require a back guard

How to pick your backguard size

M – Master Series

XX (e.g., 34) – The size of the back guard must correspond to the width of the unit. For instance, a Garland M45R, which has a width of 34 inches, would require an M34BG backguard.
